About the project

- This project will enable the development of a model for embedding digital resources into teachers' pedagogical practice. This model consists of two dimensions:

  - one dealing with the types of factors associated with teacher take-up of digital content;

  - and the other one, concerned with the characteristics of various stakeholders and the nature of digital curriculum resources (the content) and supporting technology (the tools).

- Dedicated toolkit will be provided that offers (aspiring) teachers the means to create digital learning content and to deploy digital inclusive education practices almost instantly.
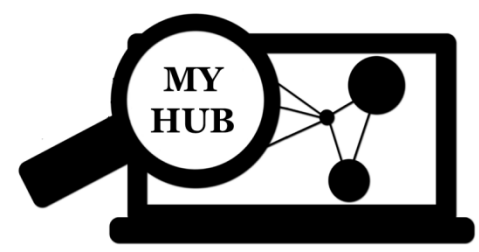

Target groups and beneficiaries

- Target groups:
  - teachers in primary and secondary education
  - support teachers and school staff
- Beneficiaries of the improved learning process will be:
  - children:
    - with disabilities
    - from economically disadvantaged families
   - from minority groups
  - their parents

Project outcomes

- IO1: New didactic model for embedding digital curriculum resources into inclusive teachers' pedagogical practice

- IO2: Handbook "Steps for transferring a course online in an inclusive manner"

- IO3: Set of instructive graphs (online, mobile and printable) and explanatory animated videos to support the implementation of inclusive remote education

- IO4: Supportive portal with searchable database with regards to inclusive remote teaching practices, trajectories, inclusive learning environments and accessible open source repositories (training material, software, etc.)
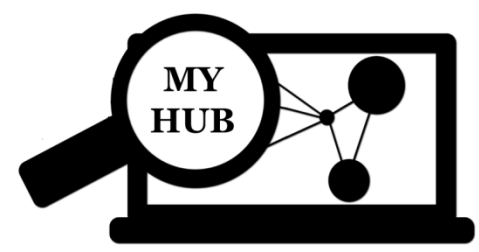

IO1: New didactic model for embedding digital curriculum resources into inclusive teachers' pedagogical practice

The main themes included in this IO are:

- Design principles and factors

    - Contextual factors

    - General change factors

    - Innovation-specific factors

    - Systemic factors

- Inclusive teaching and learning practices

- Virtuous cycles of inclusion triggered by digital inclusion

- COVID-19 impact – there are impact cases from each country
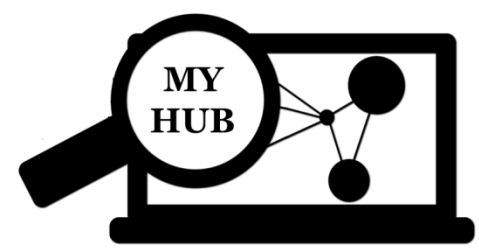

- There will be 15 chapters included in this IO

IO2: Handbook "Steps for transferring a course online in an inclusive manner"

This handbook includes seven chapters. Some of them are:

- Digital skills development and ICT in inclusive education (Self-assessment framework)
